Saginaw By Noon
Quincy Flint

Capo III
Key C → D#

The railroad train stretched a mile long
The rail cars sing an awful song
The whistle blows a special kind of blues

I'll stop in town for just one night
You can kiss my cheek and hold me tight
And we'll pray the night forgets to wake the day

My heart's down south with a girl I love
My mind is lost in the clouds above
My hands and feet are here in Ohio

I pack my bag and I'm out the door
My thoughts with her and nothing more
Than all the things we could've never been

Take the sixty-five to seventy-one
It's too many miles 'tween here and the sun
If you ride it right you'll reach Saginaw by noon

Take the sixty-five to seventy-one
It's too many miles 'tween here and the sun
If you ride it right you'll reach Saginaw by noon

My mother called on the telephone
"I miss you son, would you come back home
Grandpa says he could use another hand"

I stopped a man off an old dirt road
Can you help my find my way back home
I lost myself one too many times

Christmas time is around the bend
But I ain't coming home again
My frigid heart can't stand the sight of snow

My mother waits on the other side
And I've been driving out all night
The headlights turn a hazy holy hue

Take the sixty-five to seventy-one
You're halfway there when you hit the sun
If you ride it right you'll reach Saginaw by noon

Take the sixty-five on to seventy-one
Take it slow, be safe my son
If you ride it right you'll reach Saginaw by noon
