I have wasted away my life looking for a reason why
Looking past the clouds and all the raindrops falling down
Wonderin' when and where we might meet again

CC GG | CC FF | GG CC

Well, there's nothing I won't do to see the sunshine in your eyes
I would share my bed, all my time, say the words you long to hear
Just to hold you close to me, once again

For a moment in your arms is with you worth a thousand up above
And a night without no moon is not a day without your love
So, take it slow, and she'll come round again

And should your love return, should our promise still remain
Would you bear my love a child, we can give him your father's name
We can hold him near when he cries again

For my love has just grown stronger with every lonely passing night
Not a harmful word of anger could deprive me of your light
So, tell me that you love me, once again

For a moment in your arms is with you worth a thousand up above
And a night without no moon is not a day without your love
So, take it slow, and she'll come round again

Just take it slow, and she'll come round again
